Emory’s Student Employee of the Year
Congratulations to Cathy Kyung M. Kim

National Student Employment Week is April 9-15, 2017. Colleges and universities across the country recognize the importance of the student work experience and honor students this week.

Student supervisors presented nominations for Student Employee of the Year as part of the national celebration. Out of the many student employees nominated, Cathy Kyung M. Kim has been chosen as our 2017 Emory Student Employee of the Year. Cathy is a senior at the Goizueta Business School. She is employed as a Social Media Marketing Specialist for the Office of International and Summer Programs (OISP). Cathy has proved to be an invaluable member in the department of OISP because of her hard work and resourcefulness. To quote her supervisor, Ursula Spitzer, “Cathy’s unparalleled dedication, creativity, intelligence, and commitment to whatever she undertakes certainly distinguished her amongst her peers.”

2016-2017 Emory Student Employee of the Year

“As a student, I already knew how uniquely amazing every student and professor is on Emory’s campus and how well they represent Emory's purpose. But as I started working as a student employee, I realized that not only the students and the professors are carrying Emory's values; every single staff and worker truly believe in this community's values. Office of International and Summer Programs especially embodies the great diversity and the family-like culture that Emory University has. I am always inspired by how committed the staffs are in serving Emory students through different programs and supports. Through these works and responsibilities, I could clearly see the impact I am making not only within the Emory community but also on the bigger community.”

Student employees are an integral part of the Emory Community and bring exceptional talents to our work environments. Without part-time student employees many departments would find it difficult to meet mission critical goals.

National Student Employment Week is a perfect time to recognize and celebrate the contributions our student employees make throughout the year. Please join the Office of Financial Aid in presenting our heartfelt thanks and appreciation to all of our students who work across the University and with our community partners.
